

THE BOND RECORD.

The question before the taxpayers is, what became of the bond record? Such a record did exist and was turned over to the custody of the present county clerk, Mr. E. M. Young. It has never been satisfactorily explained what became of it.—Enterprise.

Such a record, such as it was, did exist, and the book minus the leaves on which that record was, was turned over to the present clerk and it is now in his office. Mr. Young never had possession of the book until after the leaves had been removed, and the Enterprise is well aware of the fact.

The republican newspapers of the territory are trying to make a scapegoat of a poor fellow named Berardinelli in Santa Fe. They say that he is the fellow who owed the territory for over half a million bricks and not Mr. Catron. It is worthy of notice that Mr. Catron and not Mr. Berardinelli paid for those bricks a few days ago. Comment is superfluous as well as unnecessary.

Less than 400 voters had been registered in this precinct up to the time of closing the lists last evening. Voters should remember that there are only three more days on which they can register for the coming election, and these days are the 13th, 20th and 27th of this month. Register next Saturday.

The candidates are all in the field, and from this time until the day of election the three tickets will be compared by the voters of the county. There are good men on all the tickets, but the democratic ticket is better than either of the others.

PROPERTY OWNERS throughout the county may as well get acquainted with Dave Tullock so that they will know the man who will assess their property next year. Dave is going to get a vote that will surprise both republicans and populists.

G. W. M. CARYL is known well enough throughout the county to command the respect of the voters and he will get their votes next month to a sufficient number to elect him to the office of treasurer of Grant county.

BAYLOR SHANNON is doing good work for the democratic ticket and the republicans are beginning to find out that the woods are full of Shannon men. Slippery is slipping down hill with frightful rapidity.

JOHN F. KIOUS is developing great strength in the race for the collectorship of this county and the republicans are beginning to think that their invincible candidate may be beaten after all.

MILLS, the great populist leader who was expected here last Saturday to speak at the populist convention, did not materialize. He is not wasting any money in the vain endeavor to get elected.

GEORGE W. MILES is going into the campaign with a vim which will certainly bring success. He is leaving no stone unturned and deserves the success which will crown his efforts.

DEMOCRATS need not be ashamed to vote the democratic ticket in this county this year. A better ticket has not been put up by any party in Grant county within ten years.

JOHN J. BELL declined to run for the legislature on the democratic ticket, but accepted the populist nomination. Will he ask for democratic votes?

HAS the present collector ever collected any interest and costs on delinquent taxes, and if so what has been done with the money?

HAS the Lordsburg school district ever received any of the funds belonging to the Marshall estate? Let's hear from the Liberal.

AN AMUSING SPECTACLE.

A Spectator Has Something to Say About the Populist Convention.

As the readers of THE EAGLE know, I have followed the movements of the populists of this county with some interest during the time they have been before the people. I have read with interest the declarations which they made about the purification of politics in the county and their unqualified condemnation of political bosses. Their professions seemed to be sincere and I had great hopes that they would have a tendency to elevate the politics of the county, but alas! instead of casting the political bosses overboard, they have taken up with the most notorious boss in the county and are jumping whenever he pulls the string.

Anyone who attended the convention last Saturday could not help but notice that nearly every nomination before the convention was made by Mr. Lindauer, and that Mr. Lindauer ran the convention just as he wanted to. When a man presumed to oppose one of Mr. Lindauer's men, and it only happened once, the poor fellow was charged with trying to disrupt the party at the very outset. The convention was composed of the meekest and most submissive lot of men who ever followed the leadership of a political boss.

The populist party was organized confessedly for the purpose of purifying the politics of the county and Lindauer is the leader! The spectacle of such a man leading a political party for the purification of politics is calculated to make the man in the moon grin inordinately.

I noticed men in the convention last Saturday who have been condemning Lindauer and his methods for years, but they said never a word against their new boss. They allowed him to name their candidates and run the convention to suit himself. Some of them have thought the matter over since the convention and now are wondering how they became so blinded as not to see that they were being handled like so many sheep to serve the political ends of the boss which the democratic party repudiated and threw overboard.

Some of them have had the manhood to assert themselves and have torn the Lindauer collar from their necks, but there are others who have no objection to wearing the ornament and are following their leader with a right good will to purify the politics of the county!

I confess that I expected something better of the new party; I thought it would be the party of the people, at least, but the populists were not allowed to select even their delegates to the county convention. The lists of delegates were made out and all the populists had to do when they assembled in their primaries was to cast the ballots which had been prepared. They might as well have allowed Lindauer to name all the delegates to the convention, or to have allowed him to name the candidates without the formality of a county convention, which would have amounted to the same thing as to have him name them in convention as he did.
